Tommaso D. Rendino, U.S. probation officer at New Haven, Conn., has been selected as recipient of the 1974 Richard F. Doyle Award. The award was established in 1963 by the Federal Probation Officers Association "to recognize and honor a Federal probation officer who through his own initiative has made outstanding and significant contributions to his field of endeavor."

The San Diego Metropolitan Correctional Center, located in downtown San Diego directly across the street from the new U.S. District Courthouse, was dedicated November 15 with the first commitment of Federal prisoners scheduled to begin the following Monday. Twenty-two stories high and built at a cost of $14,859,000, the new facility will accommodate 500 offenders, 192 of whom will be housed in open dormitories and the rest in private rooms. Both men and women will be incarcerated in the institution. Speaking at the dedication ceremony, Attorney General William B. Saxbe said the Center "represents a significant new approach to the age-old dilemma of how to most effectively deal with many of those who have broken society's laws."

Ten criminal justice experts have been selected for the first Advisory Board of the National Institute of Corrections, Attorney General William B. Saxbe announced in November. The Board will supervise the overall policy and operation of NIC, enacted into law September 7 as part of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act. The Institute was created to help Federal, state and local correctional agencies through management training, research and evaluation, clearinghouse and information services, policy formulation and implementation, and technical assistance. The Board, which will select a chairman and vice chairman from among its members, consists of the following: Dr. Walter Menninger, Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kans.; Vincent O'Leary, chairman, School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York, Albany; Edna L. Goodrich, superintendent, Purdy Treatment Center for Women, Gig Harbor, Wash.; Robert Kutak, attorney in Omaha, Nebr.; Shirley Jean Grey, supervisor of probation, Los Angeles County, Calif.; Bennett Cooper, director, Ohio Department of Corrections; Anthony Travisono, executive secretary, American Correctional Association, College Park, Md.; Charles B. Lankford, director, Offender Aid and Restoration Program, Fairfax County, Va.; Stephen Horn, president, California State University, Long Beach; and Norval Morris, director, Center for Studies in Criminal Justice, University of Chicago Law School.

Richard W. Velde was sworn in on September 5 as administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. He had been LEAA's deputy administrator for policy development since August 1973 and associate administrator from 1969 to 1973. Prior to joining LEAA he served as minority counsel of the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Criminal Laws and of the Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency from 1965 to 1969. Velde replaces Donald E. Santarelli who resigned effective upon his successor's appointment.

The Second National Conference of Juvenile Justice, sponsored by the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges and the National District Attorneys Association, will be held January 19 to 23 at the Hotel del Coronado, San Diego, Calif., and March 9 to 23 at the Fairmont Hotel, New Orleans, La. For further information write to: Institute Director, National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, P.O. Box 8000, Reno, Nevada 89507.

Norman A. Carlson, Director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, and Assistant Director Gary Mote met in October with Chief Judge Frank J. Battisti and Judge Thomas D. Lambros of the Northern District of Ohio to discuss the possibility of acquiring a site for a proposed Federal Youth Center in the Cleveland area.

John Biggs, Jr., senior judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, has received the 1974 Justice Award, highest award of the American Judicature Society.

An Institute on Action Research and Justice Management will be held February 23 to March 2 at The American University. For information and application forms, write or call Ms. Cathy Sacks, Center for the Administration of Justice, The American University, Washington, D.C. 20016. Telephone: (202) 686-2532.

Martin B. Lambert, senior probation officer in the Nassau County Probation Department, has assumed the presidency of the New York State Probation and Parole Officers Association.

Drug Abuse Task Force-West of the American Social Health Association in a recent position statement has reported that it opposes the use of the criminal law against persons who, "despite the policy of discouragement," do smoke marihuana. The 14-man task force concurs with the conclusions of the National Commission on Marihuana and Drug Abuse that "neither the marihuana user nor the drug itself can be said to constitute a danger to public safety."
